10	So on question 2, I just realized we are ranking ALL the choices in a question. Was that clear to everyone else?	Leroy Tripette	live answered	4/14/2022 18:14	4/14/2022 18:18
11	In regards to transit ridership, I attended a meeting a while ago now, where a property owner mentioned how there was a requirement of commercial building owners to provide a shuttle bus from public transit to their buildings. However there were no consequences for not compiling so many building owners ignore it. If this is truly something that exists, the City should look into tap into it.	Autumn Eberhardt	Thanks Autumn, that may be a reference to a Transportation Demand Management (TDM) program. We can look further into that.	4/14/2022 18:15	4/14/2022 18:16

16	Are you able to share how much Rancho Cordova is spending on this CAP program? How much is budgeted to go forward? I think the city should seek cost saving measures to help its citizens with 8.5% CPI inflation.	Gregory Mullenburg	Thanks Greg, this CAP planning process is being funded through two State of California planning grants at no cost to the City. Once adopted the mitigation strategies in the CAP may have costs going forward that would be part of future budget discussions in the 2023 or 2024 timeframe.	4/14/2022 18:18	4/14/2022 18:21
